Forensic Odontology

Forensic Odontologists are a group of dentists who are specialized in the areas of Forensic Dentistry, including criminal investigation and identification. These experts often play an essential role in identifying either victims of disasters or victims and suspects of individual crimes. The human body becomes disfigured to a great extent in burns, accidents, and mass disasters, such as earthquakes, floods, and many more. Hence, the identification of the individual becomes a challenge. However, dental remains can be used for identification purposes because they are cost-effective, reliable, and fast. In a nutshell, Forensic Odontology helps in establishing the person's identity with the help of teeth with their physiologic variations, pathology, and the effects of treatment.
